

All of the above can be achieved whilst in full time employment from day one; a good marketing tool when talking to schools as they will like the kudos of supporting such programmes.

In terms of job roles, from Approved Electrician downwards, all could benefit from selected units from an ILM qualification.

There are routes to the higher level qualifications direct from school with suitable 'A' level qualifications. However, most employers and individuals have stated that the better managers and designers all gained suitable levels of craft experience before moving into design or management positions.